

Personal Finances

ECONOMICS | SOUTH AFRICA

Household finances improved.

- Household finances improved in Q2 2024. Real personal disposable income (PDI) grew by 0.9% qoq, up from -0.1% in Q1. Real compensation of employees rose by 0.1% qoq, after rebounding by 1.5% in Q1 following three straight quarters of contraction. Other income also bounced back, growing by around 3% after declining sharply in Q1. Undoubtedly, the recovery in real PDI drove the rebound in consumer spending over the quarter.
- Household indebtedness declined marginally as the increase in nominal income outpaced household debt. Consequently, household debt to PDI declined to 62.2% in Q2 from 63% in Q1, while debt service costs to PDI also eased slightly to 9.1% from 9.2%.

Chart 1: PDI trends

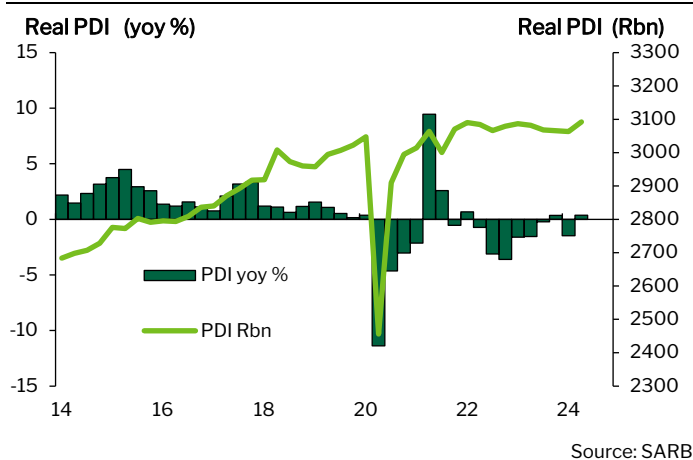

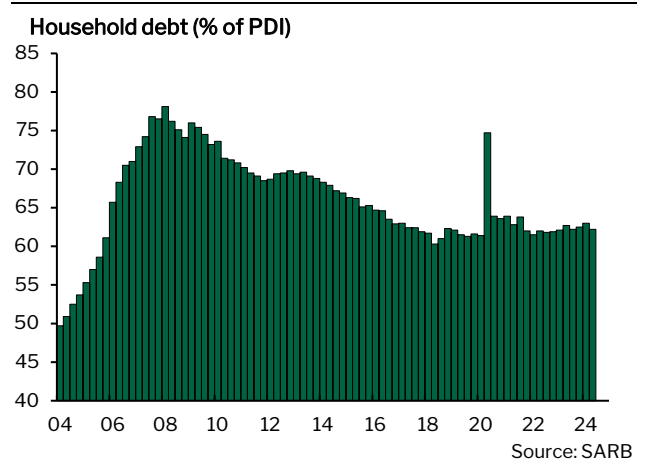

Chart 2: Household debt to income

- Household balance sheets also improved, with net wealth rising to 393% of PDI in Q2, up from 389% in Q1. The market value of assets rose by more than liabilities. The boost to household assets mainly came from the rebound in share prices, while growth in house prices remained subdued.
- The drawdown of savings continued and deepened. The personal savings rate (savings to PDI) deteriorated to -1.3% in Q2 from -0.8% in Q1.

Chart 3: Debt service costs eased but remain high.

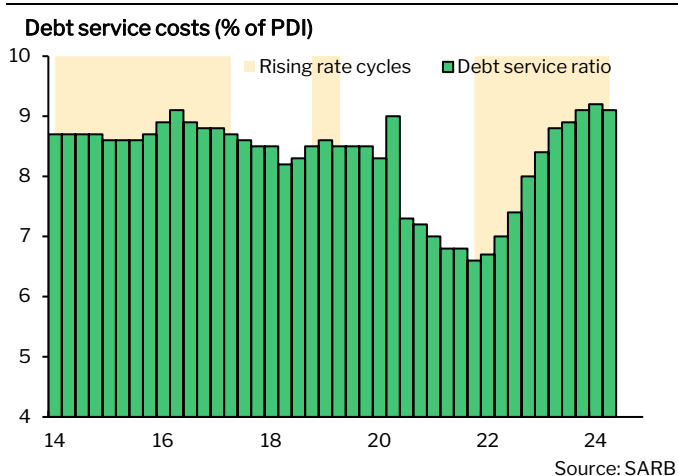

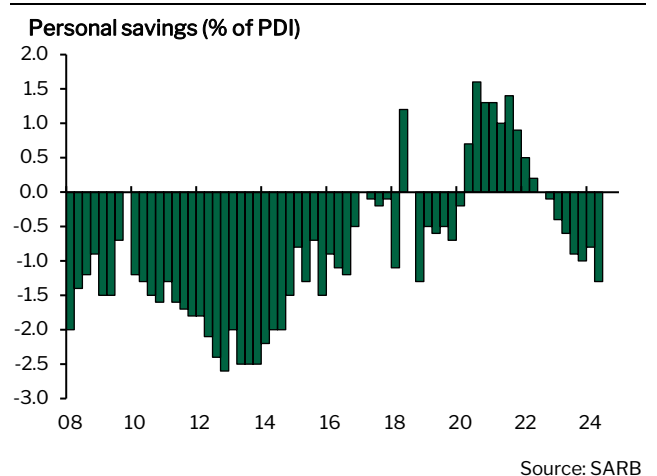

Chart 4: The personal savings rate remains negative.

- Today's numbers show that consumers are not entirely out of the woods yet, but renewed income growth and contained borrowing have placed households on a slightly firmer financial footing.
- Household finances will likely strengthen further in the year's second half and throughout 2025. With inflation forecast to remain subdued around the SARB's 4.5% target, real personal disposable income should recover further. At the same time, falling interest rates will systematically reduce debt service costs, gradually freeing more funds for discretionary spending.

Household balance sheets should also improve. On the liability side, a significant portion of the withdrawals of contractional savings through the two-pot retirement system will likely be directed at debt repayment. On the asset side, the anticipated cyclical recovery in response to easing monetary policy should also lift house and equity prices, contributing to stronger balance sheets and helping to restore financial health.

GROUP ECONOMIC UNIT

Isaac Matshego Khosa
Nicky Weimar

+27 10 234 8359
+27 10 234 8357

IsaacMat@nedbank.co.za
nickywe@nedbank.co.za

DISCLAIMER

The information furnished in this report (the "report"), which information may include opinions, estimates, indicative rates, terms, price quotations and projections, reflects the existing judgment of the author(s) and the prevailing market conditions as at the date of this report, which judgment and conditions are subject to change without notice, modification or amendment. This report does not necessarily reflect the opinion of Nedbank Limited ("Nedbank"). The information herein has been obtained from various sources, the accuracy and/or completeness of which Nedbank does not guarantee and for which Nedbank accepts no liability.

Any prices or levels contained herein are preliminary and indicative only and do not represent bids or offers. These indications are provided solely for your information and consideration. The information contained in this publication may include results of analyses from a quantitative model which represent potential future events that may or may not be realised, and is not a complete analysis of every material fact representing any product. Any estimates included herein constitute Nedbank's judgment as of the date hereof and are subject to change without any notice. Nedbank and/or its affiliates may make a market in these instruments for our customers and for our own account. Accordingly, Nedbank's may have a position in any such instrument at any time.

Nedbank recommends that independent tax, accounting, legal and financial advice be sought should any party seek to place any reliance on the information contained herein. This report is intended for use by professional and business investors only. It may not be considered as advice, recommendation or an offer to enter into or conclude any transactions. This report has been prepared for general dissemination and information purposes only and may not be construed as an offer to buy or sell or a solicitation of an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy in any jurisdiction. Any additional information relative to any financial instruments and/or financial products reviewed in this report is available upon request.

All rights reserved. Any unauthorised use or disclosure of this report is prohibited. This report may not be reproduced without the prior written consent of Nedbank. The information contained in this note is intended solely for the recipient and may not be distributed by the recipient.

All trademarks, service marks and logos used in this report are trademarks or service marks or registered trademarks or service marks of Nedbank or its affiliates.